RE: Congratulations

Dear Gayle:

We are delighted to let you know on behalf of the APC Council that you have been selected to receive the 2016 Distinguished Teaching Award in Graduate Medical Education. This award is made in recognition of your outstanding contributions to graduate medical education and your stature as a nationally recognized pathology educator and cardiovascular transplant pathologist.

We especially want to recognize your achievements and dedication to train pathologists of the future, including years as Director of the Autopsy Service, Director of the Residency Program at the Brigham and Women's Hospital and educator at Harvard Medical School. Your many roles as an influential member of the PRODS Council, including serving as its elected Chair, clearly distinguish your career from others. You are widely regarded to be an outstanding teacher, mentor and role model.

On behalf of the academic pathology community, we are very grateful for your efforts to improve our profession through teaching and leading the next generation. Your contributions will have a lasting impact on Pathology education and a great and continuing legacy through those fortunate trainees who have benefitted from your wisdom.

The award will be presented at the 2016 Association of Pathology Chairs annual meeting in San Diego, CA during the awards session (at lunch) on Wednesday, July 13th. We sincerely hope you will attend and be able to receive your award in person.

Again, congratulations! We are delighted to be able to give you this exciting news and look forward to seeing you at the meeting this summer.

With best regards,

Ann Thor, MD
