

Cardiovascular Pathology Fellowship Training Program Opening for 2017-2018

The Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minnesota, is pleased to announce an opening in our Cardiovascular Pathology Fellowship Training Program for the academic year 2017-2018.

This program brings accomplished professionals to the Mayo Clinic for a one-year ACGME-accredited fellowship program, during which you will learn to understand and diagnose routine, complex, and esoteric pathologic specimens relating to cardiovascular conditions and diseases. It is designed for individuals with a medical degree who will have completed their pathology residency training in the United States or Canada prior to beginning the fellowship.

Qualified individuals should apply to the program via the on-line system Apply Yourself located at <http://www.mayo.edu/msgme/application.html>. Your completed application must include the following: Dean's letter, three letters of recommendation (one of which should be from your current Program Director), and medical school transcripts. Applicants are responsible for ensuring all necessary materials are received by us prior to consideration for an interview.

For additional information regarding the training program, please visit <http://www.mayo.edu/msgme/lm-cardiopathology-rch.html>.